BAUBLE LURES LITTLE PHILADELPHIA GIRL TO DEATH; SEEK MANIAC

Initialed Ring Is Clew;
Ravished Body Is Found

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 9.—A shining bauble—a golden ring with the initials "D. L. V."—to attract childish attention, was believed today to have led little Dorothy Lutz to her death at the hands of a maniac.

And it was upon this gold bauble police centered their hopes of seizing the fiend who attacked and strangled the eight-year-old girl to death a few doors from her home. Her body was discovered, gagged, beaten and attacked yesterday in a vacant house after a search lasting from late last Wednesday when she disappeared. Footprints discovered near the body and the stranger's fingerprints marring the dead girl's throat also may furnish identifying clues once the maniac is arrested, police hope.

Upon the initials of the ring, however, police for the most part depend to find the slayer. Without a doubt, officials believe, the little girl was attracted into the dank interior of the desolated three-story shack where she was found, by promise of the ring from her attacker and slayer.

A search has been started for a Negro reported seen talking with the little girl a few doors from where her body was found a short time before she was reported missing. Brutality of the crime has convinced police that it was the work of a maniac.

Reconstruction of the crime revealed the girl had been attacked and slain in another untenanted building near the one where her body was found, then dragged through a trapdoor and over the rooftops and dumped into the room where her body was found. The trial from the scene of the attack over the rooftops to the spot where the body was found was marked plainly.

Discovery of the body so near the home of the girl's widowed mother, Mrs. Florence Lutz, led also to an investigation of the police squads assigned to search for the missing girl. Safety Director Kern Dodge wants to know why his bluecoats didn't search the house only seven doors away from the girl's home, the very day she was reported missing. It was not until a city-wide search had been started and four days elapsed that the body was found. Unless ample reasons can be given the angered safety director a shake up of the district police staff impends.

Capt. Kellogg is survived by his wife and four children. Funeral services will be held Thursday afternoon.

STUNT WEDDINGS ATTACKED

CLEVELAND, O., Feb. 9.—"Stunt" weddings performed at circuses, food shows, rodeos, automobile exhibitions and movie houses have aroused the ire of the Cleveland Ministers Union.

In a resolution which the union had made public today, pastors were called upon to refrain from officiating at such weddings and business enterprises were reprimanded for "utilizing weddings for advertising purposes."

The resolution further called stunt weddings a "growing menace" and declared they "undermine the dignity and sacredness of the marriage ceremony."

AL JOLSON ILL

AL JOLSON

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Feb. 9.—Suffering from acute influenza, Al Jolson, famous singing comedian of stage and screen, was confined to his hotel room here today.

Last night's performance of Jolson's show, "The Wonder Bar," was cancelled.

MOTHER CONFESSES DROWNING INFANT IN LICKING RIVER

Will Face Charges When Body Found; Start Search

NEWARK, O., Feb. 9.—High waters and court technicalities combined today to prevent authorities from bringing homicide charges against Mrs. Flossie Kimble, 32, even though she confessed yesterday, according to police, to drowning her three-week-old baby in the Licking River.

Despite the confession the tearful Mrs. Kimble was said to have made to Prosecutor John Bolin of Athens County yesterday, the woman cannot be prosecuted for homicide, Licking County Prosecutor C. G. L. Yearick said today, until the body of the child has been found. The body, according to the confession, is in the Licking River and the Licking River is now ten feet higher than normal.

Although Licking County Sheriff Festus Hoover ordered that the river be dragged, there was doubt as to the ability to find the body at this time.

Mrs. Kimble was brought back to Licking County Jail last night after, according to police, she boldly said, in answer to questioning, "Well, I'm not chicken hearted—I'll tell you about it."

Charles Buker of near Newark, on whose farm she worked, was named as father of the child, and Mrs. Kimble said Buker's two daughters advised her to avoid "disgrace" by destroying the child.

Both Buker's daughters promised to support her story that the child was left with friends, she was quoted as saying.

Authorities meanwhile started a search for Mrs. Kimble's husband, by whom, she said, she was the mother of eight other children, four of whom are now in the Perry County Children's Home.

LULL FOLLOWS HARD BATTLE IN ATTEMPT TO TAKE MOTOR ROAD

Japs Capture Woosung Village; American Infantry On Guard

SHANGHAI, Feb. 9.—Chinese snipers embarked on new tactics tonight when they tossed three bombs into the French concession in the international settlement just as a Japanese bombing plane flew overhead. The Chinese were suspected of attempting to throw blame for violence in the settlement upon the shoulders of the Japanese.

The three bombs, however, were amateurish in construction and did little damage. No injuries were reported.

With the exception of this incident, the situation along the international boundaries had been quiet for several hours up to 8 o'clock tonight.

Both Chinese and Japanese took advantage of the almost complete lull in hostilities to consolidate their positions in preparation for major actions shortly.

Municipal police were evacuated from the Dixwell Road area, their presence no longer being required.

Further north, in the direction of the Tientung station and Kiangwan, there was considerable tenseness along the Chinese and Japanese lines but there was little shooting, both sides apparently being exhausted by the long and bitter engagement of last night, when the Chinese launched a spectacular attempt to break through and cut the Woosung motor road.

Japanese infantry forces landed between Paoshan and Luho planned to use this road in their contemplated concerted advance upon Shanghai. The Chinese would be in a strategic position to stem the advance if they could obtain control of the thoroughfare.

The Japanese scored at Woosung village, which was deserted by Chinese who apparently had been driven out by a heavy bombardment. The village was razed almost completely.

The Japanese forces crossed Woosung Creek and established new headquarters in the yard of the railroad station. From there they carried on a drive of fighting toward the north, where Chinese still were barricaded at several points despite the heavy naval and land bombardment of the past several days.

It appeared today the Japanese success at Woosung Village was culminated by the moving of heavy field guns to the location from

EMPEROR'S WIDOW DIES IN POVERTY

PEIPING, Feb. 9.—The widow of the rich, powerful and aristocratic emperor Tung Chih, died today a shabby recluse in a rickety temple in a dingy side street, her identity unknown to her neighbors.

In contrast with the magnificence and splendor of her reign, she succumbed to a lingering illness at the age of seventy-six, in the crumbling structure left vacant by Buddhist priests.

Friends of the aged woman said grief hastened her death. They said she feared her adopted son Hsuan Tung, the "young emperor" of China, might accept the Japanese proposal of the Manchurian throne.

TRIAL STARTED

CIRCLEVILLE, O., Feb. 9.—Presentation of testimony was expected to be started today in the trial of Henry Londermilk, 47, a white man who with four Negroes is accused of the "torture murder" of John M. Kidney, 75-year-old blacksmith and farmer.

WINNIE RUTH JUDD MUST HANG

WINNIE JUDD

PHOENIX, Ariz., Feb. 9.—Ruth Judd, "velvet tigress" yawned when an Arizona jury found her guilty of first degree murder and decreed that she be hanged for killing her friend Agnes Lerol and Hedvig Samuelson, and shipping their bodies in trunks to Los Angeles.

Today, however, she was stunned and she cringed as she asked the jury matron:

"Can I beat the verdict through appeal?"

On Feb. 23, Judge Howard Speckman will set the date for the hanging.

The jury deliberated two hours and forty minutes and took six ballots before returning the "guilty" verdict and setting punishment at hanging.

The most visibly affected person was the doomed woman's husband,

Dr. William C. Judd, who presented a tragic figure as he walked from the court room where his young and pretty wife had been on trial three weeks, accused by the state of killing Mrs. Lerol and Hedvig Samuelson, and shipping their bodies in trunks to Los Angeles.

Mrs. Judd's aged parents, the Rev. and Mrs. H. J. McKinnel of Darlington, Ind., worn out after a long day in court and wearied from the strain of the trial, were unaware of their daughter's fate until today. They went to bed early last night not expecting such a quick verdict.

The jury took six ballots before condemning Mrs. Judd to death because Edward Landrigan, 27, bachelor-farmer, who saw his first motion picture show last week, held out against hanging a woman.

Bridge Players In Forty Cities Launch Tourney

By International News Service
Winter's cool, crisp atmosphere was split today with bridge conversation. Thousands of card players throughout Ohio were gripped by America's favorite indoor sport as the result of the first night's play in the elimination matches preceding the state tournament.

New York's Culbertson and Lenz were entirely in the background as Buckeye lovers of the pastboard art extolled their own wizards. Grand slams, bids, fineses, plays, and outstanding hands were revived for a general discussion.

But the players remained cloistered in their modesty. Some secretly lamented their "boners" while others, overcome by their surprising ability, rejoiced at their good fortune as their names were enrolled high on the record chart.

Approximately 5,000 players participated in the first night's play in forty cities throughout the state. While contract prevailed in a few sections, auction, the oldest of the two forms, held its own in the majority of cases. Rather than trust to luck, contestants had their own partners in the majority of instances.

Various systems of bidding were resorted to. Some relied upon the force bid, other the approach, and still more introduced an entirely different method. Any and every system was permitted.

The playing scenes just buzzed with excitement, being in direct contrast to the usual somnolence and quietness of private home parties. Curiosity seekers, interested spectators, and kibitzers dashed about the rooms with a contented expression.

To the actual participants, the scores for last night's twenty-four games are history. They are concerned with the same number of games on tonight's menu because after this performance the first slash occurs.

Half of the teams, who possess the highest scores will compete in city semi-finals on Thursday and Friday. A week end of rest and then 40 per cent of these winners will battle in the city finals on

KILLED DUE TO OPPOSITION TO CHINA DISPUTE

Assassin Seized On Spot; Ex-Minister Shot Three Times

TOKYO, Feb. 9.—Junnosuke Inouye, former Japanese minister of finance, was shot and killed by an assassin today because of his opposition to Japanese military activities in China.

The assassin shot Inouye three times. The distinguished Japanese statesman and financier died shortly after.

Inouye was en route to a political meeting in a school in the Hongo section where he was to speak in behalf of a Minseitō (opposition) candidate. As he left his car in front of the building the assassin fired from the darkness at close range.

All three bullets fired took effect. One struck Inouye in the region of the heart. Inouye was rushed to the Imperial University Hospital.

The assassin was seized on the spot.

Inouye, who was governor of the Bank of Japan until 1924, had been one of the outstanding civilian leaders who opposed the Japanese military campaign in Manchuria and China which culminated in attempted seizure of Shanghai.

This opposition brought about a grave cabinet crisis, which was solved only by the persuasive efforts of 80-year-old Premier Tsuyoshi Inukai, who succeeded in breaking down the civil opposition in the ministry by outlining Japan's course of action in China and Manchuria as being dictated by the needs of the Chinese and Japanese people alike.

The assassination occurred at 8 p. m. It was the second act of violence against a Japanese dignitary in less than two months. A Korean fanatic recently made an unsuccessful attempt to assassinate Emperor Hirohito. A bomb, thrown at the emperor as he was returning to his palace after witnessing a military display, missed the imperial carriage. It exploded beneath the carriage of a member of his retinue. The assassin was captured immediately.

Junnosuke Inouye, member of a family which has given many men to the political service of Japan, was born at Otta in 1869.

Graduating from the law school of the Imperial University of Tokyo in 1895, he immediately entered the Bank of Japan and was appointed to directorship of the banking bureau in 1905.

He served as the institution's agent in London from 1908 to 1911, and in the latter year became vice-president of the Yokohama Specie Bank. In 1913 he became president of the Yokohama Specie Bank and served in this capacity until 1919, when he became president of the Bank of Japan.

Inouye served as a finance minister in the short-lived Yamamoto cabinet of 1924.

Mystery Deepens When Poison Is Not Discovered in Victims

MT. VERNON, O., Feb. 9.—Greater mystery was added today to the puzzle of the deaths of three boys in the Clarence Paasik family, when health authorities reported that no poison had been found in the boys' stomachs.

Knox County Health Commissioner H. W. Blair cited a report from Dr. Leo P. Ey of the state health department as authority for the statement that no poison was found.

Previously it was believed that the three boys—Stanley, Raymond and Marion—who died within two weeks of each other, became ill from drinking poisoned milk or from eating "red berries" of a strange type.

Dr. Ey made a thorough examination of the stomachs of the three boys before submitting his report to Blair, the health commissioner said. Ey did not suggest any possible cause for the deaths.

Dr. Ernest Scott, Ohio State University medical authority, is examining skin tissue in hope of finding a cause for the illness. Mr. and Mrs. Paasik, farmers, have not been affected by the illness which caused the deaths of their sons, of other states.

REDUCTION PROGRAM TRUMPETS PEACE AS CHINA IS WAR-TORN

Continuation Of Naval Treaties, Abolition Of Submarines, Poison Gases And Bacteriological Warfare Suggested In American Schedule

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9.—Ignoring the symphony of death being played by Japanese and Chinese guns around Shanghai on the other side of the world, the United States blew hard on the trumpet of peace at Geneva today with sweeping proposals for limitation of world armaments.

Hugh S. Gibson, American ambassador to Belgium and acting chairman of the U. S. delegation to the general disarmament conference, presented that body with a nine-point program which this country hopes will serve as the basis for world-wide reduction of armaments. The proposals touched all branches of armed services, land, sea and air forces.

Briefly, the proposals contained the following points:

Continuation of the Washington and London naval treaties beyond 1936 when they would normally expire.

Even further reduction of naval armaments below the figures provided in those treaties, provided France and Italy could be brought into this agreement.

Total abolition of submarines; Protection of civilian population against aerial bombing;

Abolition of poison gases and bacteriological warfare;

Reduction of armies to the limits required for internal police purposes, plus a slight margin for protection against foreign invasion;

Restriction of land tanks, heavy mobile guns and other purely offensive war materials;

Limitation of expenditures on material to prevent a qualitative race in armament building, in addition to limitation by direct methods.

Gibson in presenting these proposals made it plain the United States does not consider them as exclusive, or as comprising a hard and fast program to which other nations must agree without qualification. They were presented, he said, "merely in order to focus attention upon the methods in which we have the greatest hope of early practical realization."

"The American delegation," he said, "is prepared to consider any form of military limitation and reduction which promises real progress toward the feeling of international security, protection against surprise and restraint on the use of arms for purposes of aggression."

Gibson also made it plain that the problem of armaments is one chiefly concerning Europe and Asia. "The problem of armaments is not of the western hemisphere," he declared.

"The nations of the western hemisphere have long since prepared themselves for an international life in which the solution of difficulties will be sought by pacific means only."

"Of the five principal navies of the world only one belongs to an American nation and to this navy the principle of proportionate limitation and reduction has been comprehensively applied. Not a single American nation possesses an army which brings fear to its neighbors. For half a century no international war has occurred between the nations of our hemisphere."

HOOVER ELECTION PREDICTED BY WILL ROGERS ON RETURN

Wisecracker Advises Discounting News From War Scene

NEW YORK, Feb. 9.—Will Rogers, who said he didn't want to see the Sphinx because he had already seen ex-President Coolidge, returned from a trip around the world today convinced that President Hoover will be re-elected and that the disarmament conference is a "bust."

While abroad he met Ray Long, editor and publisher, and wanted to bet him $1,000 that Hoover would be returned to the White House. The bet wasn't taken.

Rogers inquired particularly of Floyd Gibbons, International News Service War correspondent in the Chinese fighting zone, with whom he made a plane flight to Manchuria.

"Gibbons didn't like it much," he said. "Anybody who flies with a Chinese pilot feels like Lindbergh must have felt when he started across the Atlantic."

The disarmament conference, said Rogers, was "just like an opening of the folioes."

All France wanted to get in," he said, "and the speculators had the tickets. The diplomats sold them. Its only chance they had to clean up."

"War" news from Tokio, Rogers added, ought to be discounted 800 per cent.

"And if it comes from Chinese sources you can discount it 340 per cent."

The international wisecracker returned on the Europa, which was eighteen hours late, due to heavy gales.

Another passenger was Walter E. Edge, U. S. ambassador to France, who declined to discuss politics or the international situation.

All three bullets fired took effect. One struck Inouye in the region of the heart. Inouye was rushed to the Imperial University Hospital. The assassin was seized on the spot.

Inouye, who was governor of the Bank of Japan until 1924, had been one of the outstanding civilian leaders who opposed the Japanese military campaign in Manchuria and China which culminated in attempted seizure of Shanghai.

This opposition brought about a grave cabinet crisis, which was solved only by the persuasive efforts of 80-year-old Premier Toyotsuki Inukai, who succeeded in breaking down the civil opposition in the ministry by outlining Japan's course of action in China and Manchuria as being dictated by the needs of the Chinese and Japanese people alike.

The assassination occurred at 9 p. m. It was the second act of violence against a Japanese dignitary in less than two months. A Korean fanatic recently made an unsuccessful attempt to assassinate Emperor Hirohito. A bomb, thrown at the emperor as he was returning to his palace after witnessing a military display, missed the imperial carriage. It exploded beneath the carriage of a member of his retinue. The assassin was captured immediately.

Junnosuke Inouye, member of a family which has given many men to the political service of Japan, was born at Oita in 1869.

Graduating from the law school of the Imperial University of Tokyo in 1895, he immediately entered the Bank of Japan and was appointed director of the banking bureau in 1905.

He served as the institution's agent in London from 1908 to 1911, and in the latter year became vice-president of the Yokohama Specie Bank. In 1913 he became president of the Yokohama Specie Bank and served in this capacity until 1919, when he became president of the Bank of Japan.

Inouye served as a finance minister in the short-lived Yamamoto cabinet of 1924.

MRS. DAWES AND NEPHEW RETURN

NEW YORK, Feb. 9.—Mrs. Charles G. Dawes, wife of the former ambassador to the court of St. James' and her nephew, Henry Dawes, were due to arrive today from Europe.

Other notables scheduled to land today from abroad included Sir Malcolm Campbell, holder of the world's automobile speed record, Edna Best and Herbert Marshall, actors.

Daniel Willard Sr., president of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, was to sail today with his wife and son for Bermuda.

MYSTERY DEEPENS WHEN POISON IS NOT DISCOVERED IN VICTIMS

MT. VERNON, O., Feb. 9.—Greater mystery was added today to the puzzle of the deaths of three boys in the Clarence Paasig family, when health authorities reported that no poison had been found in the boys' stomachs.

Knox County Health Commissioner H. W. Blair cited a report from Dr. Leo F. Ey of the state health department as authority for the statement that no poison was found.

Previously it was believed that the three boys—Stanley, Raymond, and Marion—who died within two

REDUCTION PROGRAM TRUMPETS PEACE AS CHINA IS WAR-TORN

Continuation Of Naval Treaties, Abolition Of Submarines, Poison Gases And Bacteriological Warfare Suggested In American Schedule

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9.—Ignoring the symphony of death being played by Japanese and Chinese guns around Shanghai on the other side of the world, the United States blew hard on the trumpet of peace at Geneva today with sweeping proposals for limitation of world armaments.

Hugh S. Gibson, American ambassador to Belgium and acting chairman of the U. S. delegation to the general disarmament conference, presented that body with a nine-point program which this country hopes will serve as the basis for world-wide reduction of armaments. The proposals touched all branches of armed services, land, sea and air forces.

Briefly, the proposals contained the following points: Continuation of the Washington and London naval treaties beyond 1936 when they would normally expire.

Even further reduction of naval armaments below the figures provided in those treaties, provided France and Italy could be brought into this agreement.

Protection of civilian population against aerial bombing; Abolition of poison gases and bacteriological warfare.

Reduction of armies to the limits required for internal police purposes, plus a slight margin for protection against foreign invasion; Restriction of land tanks, heavy

COMPLETE TEXT OF U. S. PROPOSAL AT GENEVA

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9.—Following is the text of the proposals put forward by the United States today at the general disarmament conference at Geneva:

1. The American government advocates consideration of the draft convention (drawn up by the League of Nations preparatory disarmament commission) as containing the outlines for a convenient basis for discussion, while expressing its entire willingness to give full consideration to any supplementary proposals calculated to advance the end we all seek.

2. We suggest the possibility of prolonging the existing naval agreements concluded at Washington and London, and we advocate completing the latter as soon as possible by the adherence of France and Italy.

3. We advocate proportional reduction from the figures laid down in the Washington and London agreements on naval tonnage as soon as all parties to the Washington agreement have entered this frame work.

4. We advocate, as we long have done, the total abolition of submarines.

5. We join in formulating the most effective measures to protect civilian population against aerial bombing.

6. We advocate the total abolition of lethal gases and bacteriological warfare.

7. We advocate, as I have already stated, the computation of the number of armed forces on the basis of the effectiveness necessary for the maintenance of internal order plus some suitable contingent for defense. The former are obviously impossible for reduction; the latter is a question of relative.

8. We agree in advocating special restrictions for tanks and heavy mobile guns, in other words, for those arms of a peculiarly offensive character.

9. We are prepared to consider a limitation of expenditure on material as a complementary method to direct limitation, feeling that it may prove useful to prevent a qualitative race; if and when quantitative limitation has been effected.

weeks of each other, became ill from drinking poisoned milk or from eating "red berries" of a strange type.

Dr. Ey made a thorough examination of the stomachs of the three boys before submitting his report to Blair, the health commissioner said. Ey did not suggest any possible cause for the deaths.

Dr. Ernest Scott, Ohio State University medical authority, is examining skin tissues in hope of finding a cause for the illness. Mr. and Mrs. Paasig, farmers, have not been affected by the illness which caused the deaths of their sons.

HOOVER ELECTION PREDICTED BY WILL ROGERS ON RETURN

Wisecracker Advises Discounting News From War Scene

NEW YORK, Feb. 9.—Will Rogers, who said he didn't want to see the Sphinx because he had already seen ex-President Coolidge, returned from a trip around the world today convinced that President Hoover will be re-elected and that the disarmament conference is a "bust."

While abroad he met Ray Long, editor and publisher, and wanted to bet him $1,000 that Hoover would be returned to the White House. "He bet wasn't taken."

Rogers inquired particularly for Floyd Gibbons, International News Service war correspondent in the Chinese fighting zone, with whom he made a plane flight to Manchuria.

"Gibbons didn't like it much," he said. "Anybody who flies with a Chinese pilot feels like Lindbergh must have felt when he started across the Atlantic."

The disarmament conference, said Rogers, was "just like an opening of the fannies."

"All France wanted to get in," he said, "and the speculators had the tickets. The diplomats sold them. It's the only chance they had to clean up."

"War" news from Tokyo, Rogers added, ought to be discounted 800 per cent.

"And if it comes from Chinese sources you can discount it 840 per cent."

The international wisecracker returned on the Europa, which was eighteen hours late, due to heavy gales.

Another passenger was Walter E. Edge, U. S. ambassador to France, who declined to discuss politics or the international situation.

PAROLES GIVEN 33

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 9.—Paroles were granted today by the state board of clemency to thirty-three convicts in the Ohio penitentiary. The cases of eighty other prisoners were continued and two convicts were released by two authorities of other states.

GAZETTE PRESENTS
SERIES TO EXPLAIN
PERSONAL TAX LAW

(Editor's note: This is the first of a series of articles presenting simple digest of Ohio's new classified tax law, under which Greene County owners of taxable personal property will make their payments for the first time this year.)

Returns shall be made annually between February 15 and March 31. If a person becomes a taxpayer after March 31 and July 1 in any year, he shall make a return within ten days after becoming such.

All personal property excepting deposits shall be listed as of the beginning of the first day of January. But when a person becomes a taxpayer between January 1 and July 1, of any year, he shall list all his taxable property as of the date when he becomes such taxpayer.

Each person shall return all the taxable property of which he is the owner, excepting that required by the regulation of the commission, to be returned for him by a fiduciary. It includes every person residing in, or incorporated or organized by or under the laws of Ohio, or owing or having a beneficial interest in taxable property in this state.

A person engaging in business between January 1 and July 1 in any year shall make a return for the probable average amount of personal property intended to be used by him in business until the first day of the following January.

Personal property used in business shall be listed and assessed in the taxing district in which such business is carried on. If such business is carried on in more than one taxing district in the same county, the return must set forth the amount of property which is situated in each taxing district in such county.

Domestic animals not used in business shall be listed and assessed in the taxing district where kept. Ships, vessels, boats and aircraft and shares and interest therein must be listed and assessed in the taxing district where the owner resides. Taxable property belonging to the estate of a deceased resident of Ohio shall be listed and assessed in the taxing district in which he resided at the time of death.

Blanks shall be mailed or distributed by the county auditor prior to February 15 to all persons known to him to be taxpayers, or to whom the commission may direct such blanks to be mailed or distributed.

When a taxpayer fails to make a return within the time prescribed by the new law or as extended by the auditor, or fails to list in a return any item or items of taxable property which he is required to list, the assessor shall add to the assessment of each class or item of taxable property a penalty of 50 per cent.

If taxpayer makes a return or an amended return within sixty days after the expiration prescribed by law, the penalty may be reduced to 5 per cent of the assessment.

One-half of the tax must be paid within ten days after the filing of the return except as to inter-county corporations, public utilities, inter-county dealers in intangibles and domestic insurance companies or anyone required to file with the Tax Commission. Returns will not be deemed filed unless the advance payment (one-half) is made.

CLIFTON

Miss Harriett Pressler entertained at the home of Mrs. Noah Stretcher in Springfield Thursday night, at a miscellaneous shower honoring Mrs. Paul Berry (Doris Printz), a recent bride. The house was decorated in pink and white, and the dining table was centered by an immense rose in which the guests placed their parcels containing gifts for Mrs. Berry. When all had been deposited, the petals of the rose were closed, and the flower tendered to the honor guest. The guests were occupied the rest of the evening playing 500. Eighteen persons enjoyed the evening. Mrs. W. D. Printz of Clifton, Mrs. Berry's mother, was a guest.

Granville Printz, accompanied by Prof. Frederick Peak of Antioch College, motored to Cincinnati Saturday, to see "Mourning Becomes Electra."

Mrs. Elizabeth Hopping spent last week in Springfield, as the guest of Mrs. Jennie Wyke.

LENT SEASON OPENS
WEDNESDAY; WILL END HOLY SATURDAY

The season of Lent, a period which the ecclesiastical calendar sets aside as a time for sacrifice and prayer begins Wednesday, which is known as Ash Wednesday, and closes at noon on Holy Saturday, the day preceding Easter.

The period parallels, in modern times, the forty-day period in which Christ fasted and prayed in preparation for His death on the cross.

Lent marks the opening of services twice a week at St. Brigid Catholic Church, beginning with services Wednesday evening in which the ancient ritual of the distribution of ashes will be repeated. The services will be held Wednesday and Friday evenings throughout Lent, with sermons each Wednesday by the Rev. John Trench, pastor of St. Augustine Church, Jamestown.

Catholics in the Cincinnati diocese were reminded of Lenten regulations in letters to parishes from Archbishop John T. McNicholas, Cincinnati, in which he urged the faithful to prayer and sacrifice. The letter pointed out the necessity for fast and abstinence and of foregoing amusements, social affairs being restricted to those arranged for charity. Because of conditions among the unemployed, the diocesan letter recognizes the need of many this year, and advises them from strict observance of the rules of abstinence.

Easter this year comes on March 27, the earliest Easter date for a number of years. Catholics are obliged to receive communion at least once during what is known as the Easter season, which is the period from Ash Wednesday to Trinity Sunday.

Drake, Greene County Farm Bureau agent; Dr. J. D. Burris, from the state veterinary's office at Columbus; R. C. Cray, of Ohio State University, and J. C. Neff, state economic expert.

PRESIDENT HOOVER OPENS WASHINGTON PROGRAM BY SPEECH

President Hoover will officially open the nine-months, nation-wide George Washington Bicentennial celebration at noon (Eastern standard time) February 22, when he will deliver his George Washington address before a joint meeting of Congress, assembled in the House of Representatives in the Capitol. The Judges of the Supreme Court, members of the Cabinet, foreign diplomats and many other distinguished visitors also will be present, and the address will be carried to every corner of America over a nation-wide hook-up.

Following his address, President Hoover will be escorted to the East steps of the Capitol, and will give the signal for the singing of "America" by a chorus of ten thousand voices. It is expected that millions of people will join in this "singing" as it comes over the air.

The great chorus gathered at the Capitol will be conducted by Walter Damrosch and will be accompanied by the United States Army, Navy and Marine bands which will play as a unit under the direction of John Philip Sousa. An "inaugural" crowd is expected to be on hand for these ceremonies.

After luncheon, President Hoover, accompanied by the members of the United States George Washington Bicentennial Commission and the District of Columbia George Washington Bicentennial Commission will go to Mount Vernon to lay a wreath on the tomb of the Father of His Country in the name of a united nation.

At 3 p. m. there will be exercises at the Washington Monument under the auspices of the various patriotic societies in the District of Columbia.

In the evening the George Washington Colonial Costume Ball will be held at the Mayflower Hotel under the auspices of the United States George Washington Bicentennial Commission and the District of Columbia Bicentennial Commission. No effort is being spared to reproduce the Colonial atmosphere for this occasion. The affair is being managed by experts and every state will be represented by especially invited guests.

While the celebration officially opens on February 22, Sunday February 21, will be an active day in the District of Columbia as well as in every city in America. The United States George Washington Bicentennial Commission has suggested special religious services for George Washington to be held wherever people gather to worship. Response from the various church organizations to this project has been remarkable. It is probable that practically all the 22,000 churches will hold special services honoring the First President on this day.

$750.00 Cash Offered For Name of Movie Actress

Reward Will Be Paid Everyone Who Submits Most Suitable Name

From Hollywood comes an extraordinary announcement. A movie actress is in need of a name, and $750.00 in cash will be paid for the best suggestion. You can give her yours, or any other name you think of, it may mean $750.00 to you.

This movie actress, whom you have probably seen on the screen of your favorite motion picture theater, is the beautiful Helen Mann. Like most of the stars, she prefers to use a name other than her own, and in order to help her obtain it, $750.00 in cash is offered to anyone who is quick in sending in the name selected. Miss Mann's publicity director says, "Most any name may win." It may be your very own, a name of a friend or relative, or a coined name made up by you. Readers of this announcement are urged to send their suggestions for a name at once, because $250.00 extra will be given the winner if name is mailed and postmarked before February 14, 1932. Just make it easy to pronounce and easy to remember. But send it right away, or you may be late for the promptness prize.

All entries must be sent to the Publicity Director's office, E. A. Williams, Studio C-156 1023 N. Sycamore Ave., Hollywood, California. Only one suggestion for a name should be submitted by each contestant. Everyone is invited to submit a name, and in case of ties, duplicate awards will be given. Officials say that any name may win the $750.00, even if submitted on a post card or scrap of paper. If you can use $750.00, here is an opportunity to get it. Send your suggestion at once. Adv.

HAVE COLOR IN CHEEKS

If your skin is yellow—complexion pallid—tongue coated—appetite poor—you have a bad taste in your mouth—a lay, no-good feeling—you should try Olive Tablets.

Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets—a substitute for calomel—were prepared by Dr. Edwards after 20 years of study. Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound. Know them by their olive color.

To have a clear, pink skin, bright eyes, no pimples, a feeling of buoyancy like childhood days, you must get at the cause.

Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets act on the liver and bowels like calomel—yet have no dangerous after effects.

$750.00 Cash Offered For Name of Movie Actress

Reward Will Be Paid Everyone Who Submits Most Suitable Name

From Hollywood comes an extraordinary announcement. A movie actress is in need of a name, and $750.00 in cash will be paid for the best suggestion. You can give her yours, or any other name you think of, it may mean $750.00 to you.

This movie actress, whom you have probably seen on the screen of your favorite motion picture theater, is the beautiful Helen Mann. Like most of the stars, she prefers to use a name other than her own, and in order to help her obtain it, $750.00 in cash is offered to anyone who is quick in sending in the name selected. Miss Mann's publicity director says, "Most any name may win." It may be your very own, a name of a friend or relative, or a coined name made up by you. Readers of this announcement are urged to send their suggestions for a name at once, because $250.00 extra will be given the winner if name is mailed and postmarked before February 14, 1932. Just make it easy to pronounce and easy to remember. But send it right away, or you may be late for the promptness prize.

All entries must be sent to the Publicity Director's office, E. A. Williams, Studio C-156 1023 N. Sycamore Ave., Hollywood, California. Only one suggestion for a name should be submitted by each contestant. Everyone is invited to submit a name, and in case of ties, duplicate awards will be given. Officials say that any name may win the $750.00, even if submitted on a post card or scrap of paper. If you can use $750.00, here is an opportunity to get it. Send your suggestion at once. Adv.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

He that turneth away his ear from hearing the law, even his prayer shall be abomination.—Proverbs, xxviii, 9.

SURPLUS "CROP"

Another surplus crop from which farmers are suffering is the perennial crop of advice to them to be "efficient." Whenever two or more farmers are gathered together, someone gets up and lays all their economic troubles to the fact that they manage their plants inefficiently. Advice of this kind is as deprecatory as witch-grass, as persistent as dandelions, as widespread as thistles. You cannot export it with the aid of debentures or equalize it by means of fees.

A good many farmers unquestionably are inefficient; but when we recall the percentage of merchants and manufacturers that go to the wall in this country even in normal years, we are not so sure that farmers, as a class, are any more inefficient than some other people.

Agriculture in the United States is passing through a period of revolutionary transition, as the result of the mechanization of production and the survival of a system of taxation that came into being when wealth lay far more in land than it does today. The fact that farmers the country over have done as well as they have, proves that they are not so inefficient as many speakers feel obliged to tell them they are. Constantly having to listen to the assertion that "efficiency" on the farm will lift all the farmer's troubles from his shoulders would make us, if we were farmers, chew crowbars and spit shingle nails.

OUR NEW AMBASSADOR

The translation of Secretary Mellon from the Treasury Department to the Court of St. James is a graceful reward for 11 years of faithful and efficient service in one of the most difficult positions in the Government. At the same time it is a move that promises to redound to the further benefit of this country. Ambassador Mellon will find in London, at this time abundant room for the exercise of his unchallenged financial ability and intimate acquaintance with the fiscal policy of the present Administration in Washington.

Appointed on March 4, 1921, Secretary Mellon has guided the financial craft of the United States through waters more troubled than any since Alexander Hamilton set out to devise a financial system for the young republic. A Secretary of the Treasury who would satisfy everybody is as difficult to conceive of as a tax that would not displease anybody. The administration of the Treasury Department is always under attack by groups that look upon the Treasury as a trough from which the public may feed at will, without refilling it from their pockets. Criticism has been Secretary Mellon's lot, as well as approbation.

The duties and responsibilities of the "watchdog of the Treasury" weigh heavily on a man of 76 years. At the Embassy in London a strong subordinate staff will probably leave Ambassador Mellon little to do beyond exercising his ripe judgment and displaying those qualities of gentleman and financier which already have won for him the esteem of the people of Great Britain. In Washington the elevation of Undersecretary Ogden L. Mills to the Cabinet will insure that the efficient conduct of the Treasury Department will continue unbroken.

TRAFFIC ACCIDENTS

The number of persons fatally injured in traffic accidents during the past year, increased. On the other hand, accidents to commercial vehicles decreased in the last six months of 1931 from the figure set by the first six months of the year.

The downward curve of accidents involving controlled commercial vehicles, set against the upward trend of general traffic fatalities, suggests that not all the loss of life caused by the operation of motor vehicles in this country every year is as unavoidable as many people profess to believe. The man who is driving for an employer realizes, it is sufficiently impressed with the fact, that his job depends on avoiding damage to his employer's property and to the property and life or limb of other people. Consequently he is careful. What is more, an employer of drivers, if he is alive to his own financial interests, see to it that his men are competent and are in fit condition to drive when they go to work.

The great majority of traffic accidents happen to passenger cars operated by their owners or others who feel no responsibility to anyone but themselves. The truck driver has to keep his mind on business. The operator of a pleasure car may be going to or from a party, with his mind more on pleasure than on the task immediately before him. Carelessness and recklessness bred of liquor or merely of the spirit of the occasion, when uncontrolled by considerations of employment, account for a good deal of life lost that might be saved if the driver of his own car used the same caution that is enjoined upon those who drive commercial vehicles.

Just how he is to be induced to do so may not be easy to say, although the experience of owners of fleets of trucks points to the probability that the fear of serious consequences to participants in all traffic accidents for which they are responsible, would tend to cut down the number of accidents to passenger cars, as it has cut down the number of accidents to commercial vehicles. As long as they feel that the law will deal lightly with recklessness and intoxication on the highway, a percentage of motorists will take a chance—and it is that chance which kills more people in the United States every year than any other out-of-door factor.

Troubles Of Genius

By JOHN ERSKINE
Author and Professor,
of Columbia University
(John Erskine was born in New York, Oct. 5, 1879. He is a graduate of Columbia, and has received numerous honorary degrees. He has been a teacher and professor in various colleges of United States and at present is a professor at Columbia. He was chairman of the administrative committee of the Juilliard School of Music, and since 1922 has been president. Some of his publications are: "Leading American Novelists," "Written English," "The Golden Treasury," "Great American Writers," "A Pageant in Honor of Roger Bacon," "The Shadowed Hour," "The Kind of Poetry," "The Enchanted Garden," "Galadiah," "Prohibition and Christianity," "Adam and Eve," and "Penelope's Man." But it was the novel "The Private Life of Helen of Troy" that made him famous.)

There are no economic opportunities in creative music. A creative artist may make money, but if he does it will be an accident. The great problem in all creative art is that the artist has no right to ask society for support for something that society doesn't want. If we had a great musical genius in this country today, one who could write opera comparable to Wagner, he would have no economic career whatever.

There are not enough opera houses here. The income from his work would not pay his rent. In Germany, on the other hand, where opera is common a successful opera is equivalent to a run on Broadway. The same is true of the creator of symphonic compositions or chamber music.

The composer and his type are the most precious things in human nature, and the first thing we ought to realize in this civilization is that they have no economic career.

MY NEW YORK

By JAMES ASWELL

NEW YORK—In an Italian restaurant on Second avenue, the other day, a patron smashed a seltzer bottle over a waiter's head. The cops came and tried to find out what had started the trouble. "I told him to bring my omelet soft. I told him four times. He kept bringing them hard. I had to hit him, don't you see?" He was a grave little man with saucer eyes. They took him off to jail. The papers, except one, spurned the human flavor of the occurrence, and printed something about a smoldering gangster feud over "territory."

Lingering in the wash of the thinning crowd after the ambulance drove away I remembered suddenly that I'd never been able to get a soft omelet either. I felt the utter anti-social urge to cheer.

HOP, SKIP AND JUMP

Luncheon today with a lady who knows Annette Kellerman. . . . Annette made a big business out of swimming and now lives luxuriously in Paris, being associated with a manufacturer of bathing suits in this country, as stylist. . . . Incidentally, the first Annette Kellerman suit, which shocked the land, would cause the wearer to resemble a lady swathed in mattresses today. . . . Modern bathing suits, I am told (but who needs to be told?) have reached the absolute maximum of nudity, and if any change occurs it must be in the direction of modesty. . . .

Among 147 American cities, New York ranked seventh and Chicago fourth from the top of the list of "most murderous towns," according to a survey recently revealed by a southern scientist. . . . But I wouldn't advise anyone living in Hell's Kitchen to sell his bullet-proof vest, just the same. . . .

Buddy Rogers' stock response when called on for a few words is the line about being mistaken for Will Rogers' son. . . . The other evening when he pulled it someone yapped: "Yeah, the nose is similar." . . . But the thing about Buddy that always surprises me is his heavy beard. . . . It's almost as luxurious as Jed Harris' except that Buddy keeps shaved. . . . A few nights before a recent flop show collapsed entirely, the house was strangely packed; not a vacant seat, and three rows of standees. . . . But the box-office man told the story: The evening's gross intake was precisely $7, the audience being composed of friends of the producer. . . .

OCCASION

"The Statue of Liberty" I was informed by a specialist in the history of the town, "has only flown an American flag once. Can you guess upon what occasion that was?"

"Oh, hand, I'd say it must've been when the armistice was announced in 1918."

"Oh, no! It was a much more important day than that. The flag flew in honor of Lindbergh's arrival!"

ECONOMY

A well known acquaintance called me up this morning to relay a yarn he had picked up the evening before along Broadway. "But don't mention my name," he cautioned, soberly. "Why not?" It was genuinely surprised. There was nothing scandalous in the yarn he had communicated, and he is a gentleman who cannot be said exactly to retire into an anteroom when the photographers are abroad. "Because," he confessed, "I just paid my life insurance, and what with one thing and another I'm broke. If you mention me the clipping bureau will soak me ten or fifteen dollars."

DISCOVERY OF POLITICAL ELECTRICITY—1932

JAPANESE AND CHINESE HAVE LITTLE IN COMMON AS CHARACTERISTICS GO

—CHARLES P. STEWART—

WASHINGTON. — Because both nationalities are Mongolian, most occidentals, I think, regard the Japanese and Chinese as much alike.

As a matter of fact, they are two very different breeds of human beings.

Where there is an opportunity to compare them they do not even greatly resemble each other. In Shanghai, for example, a Japanese is as easy to recognize in the current of Chinese pedestrian traffic, as it is to pick out a Nordic in the sidewalk throng in the Italian quarter of an American city.

In other respects than the matter of appearance they have their distinguishing characteristics also.

My own experience in China was in the early days of the revolution, when there was considerable fighting in the country surrounding Shanghai, in connection with which my duties as a news correspondent frequently made it desirable for me to obtain photographs. Not being an expert photographer myself, I occasionally employed a camera man, to accompany me on trips into areas where hostilities threatened or actually were in progress. For this purpose I soon discovered that a Japanese was vastly preferable, since he invariably stood his ground until he had obtained the desired picture or pictures, while a Chinese just as invariably ran away at the first sign of danger.

Apparently the Chinese were not exactly afraid. The Chinese troops stood their ground well enough, but Chinese camera men evidently did not consider it worth while to risk being shot for the price of a photograph or two.

On the other hand, it is well known that occidental business men engaged in trade in the Orient always choose Chinese rather than Japanese.

But we were misers before ever we had money. . . . We are not arrogant because we have power. We were arrogant first and sought food on which our arrogance might feed.

Men are not wise because they have a great fund of knowledge. Many a man is wise who knows little that is fed to boys and girls in school. Many a child is wise before he knows his letters. . . . Women are not tender because their pity is aroused. They act gently toward the poor, the suffering, the betrayed and then their pity blooms like a flower. The tiger loves blood, and he has seized his piteous prey, and the humble are gentle before they have sweetened their lives with humility.

Men act and then they give their reason. They are themselves first, before they try to explain and justify themselves.

Everything SEEMS topsy-turvy, but it is not really so. If the world seems awry and contradictory, it is because we too often are expecting to be admired for our marvelous ability to stand on our heads.

Life is not wild and frantic—it is serene and steady enough for those who are not turning flip-flops.

Even the Japanese generally employ Chinese, at the treaty ports, in posts where money is to be handled. It likewise is recognized by foreigners that cash and jewelry can quite safely be left lying around in hotel rooms in China. It is no safer to do so in Japan than in any other part of the world; not as safe, perhaps.

The internationalized portion of Shanghai is an extremely free-and-easy place for its foreign residents, but it is run with the strongest kind of a hand as to the natives, both within and surrounding the settlement.

The police are numerous and efficient, and of course forces of marines always are available from the warships which every western country (and Japan as well) of any consequence keeps constantly on duty in the Whangpoo river only a biscuit-toss off the waterfront.

The consciousness of such powerful support constantly at their back and call tends to encourage an attitude of cockiness on the part of a certain type of occidental sojourners in the country—and yet there is a kind of tension in the atmosphere.

True, there is no real peril. The foreign ships in the port can take their various nationals on board in any emergency. Still, it is hard not to feel a disagreeable realization that just such a situation may develop on short notice.

One feels the country's oppressiveness more acutely upon a lone trip into the interior.

The traveler doubtless slips a "45" into his pocket on leaving on one of these journeys and of course a "45" slug is sufficient to stop any Chinaman and a clipful are enough to stop several. But obviously no imaginable amount of ammunition that one man can carry will stop 5,000 or 10,000 and he has an uneasy realization that, by some inadvertence, which he never will be able satisfactorily to explain, he may start that many on the war-path against him.

The difficulty is to make the rank-and-file of the Chinese understand.

Illustratively, they had, in my time in Shanghai, an unreasonable prejudice against vaccination, and a riot was very nearly precipitated in the settlement because the international authorities were disposed to insist on it in the face of a threatened smallpox outbreak.

In such fashions trouble is a possibility on almost no notice whatever, due to no cause which occidentals can foresee.

The Japanese, in their different way, are as unfathomable as the Chinese.

Their jeopardizing of the interests of other nationalities in the international settlement of Shanghai (where each has as much title, by treaty, to the respect of its rights as in its own home territory) was a demonstration of the unexpectedness of their policy, if it can be referred to as constituting anything so coherent as a policy.

Not only had persons experienced in the ways of the east expected nothing of the sort; they distinctly expressed themselves as sure the islanders would not attempt it.

Japan's diplomats meet western diplomats on common ground and talk with them upon a basis of mutual comprehension. The reasoning of their military men, however, is as difficult for the occidental mind to grasp as the fourth dimension.

The Chinese are irresponsible, and may perpetrate a massacre of foreigners. On the other hand, Japanese junkerdom may deliberately execute an American or a European who gives offense. Thus, there are elements of danger for the foreigners in both factions.

ALL of US

By MARSHALL MASLIN

We Flee and Are Afraid
We Are Wise Before We Know
Is Everything Topsy-Turvy?

Everything is topsy-turvy. Didn't you know that? Yes, you did—but you haven't put it into words. And we often know truths without discovering that we know them.

We are afraid because we run away. We think, to be sure, that we run away because we are afraid, but that isn't true. . . . We face a roaring lion and our feet take us swiftly away from that place. Then fear floods our being and we shiver. But until we fled we were not afraid.

We face a great peril and we plant our feet solidly and strike out boldly. Then, afterward, we are brave. Something within us comes to our rescue, strengthens our arm, makes more stubborn our courage. . . . A gland within us pours a strengthening elixir into our veins and we are twice the battling warrior we had ever dreamed of being.

We love money before we get it. We want something else first; we want conflict, power, a testing of our strength; money comes along and takes possession of us. Then we fall in love with its bright golden face and we are misers. . . .

But we were misers before ever we had money. . . . We are not arrogant because we have power. We were arrogant first and sought food on which our arrogance might feed.

Men are not wise because they have a great fund of knowledge. Many a man is wise who knows little that is fed to boys and girls in school. Many a child is wise before he knows his letters. . . . ## GETTING AHEAD

(How Well Known Persons Achieved Success)

By The Success Reporter

MAYOR JAMES M. CURLEY
Of Boston

QUESTION: Mayor Curley, what qualities do you think are demanded for a successful career in politics?

ANSWER: I might make the ratio 95 per cent perspiration and 5 per cent inspiration. There is no field of activity in which hard work counts for so much as in politics. The best rule is live clean and work hard.

Politics is like running an automobile. You must always allow for more depreciation than actually takes place. You lose 20 per cent of your friends in a year, and you must during that year make an additional 25 per cent if you desire to continue in public life.

In politics as in everything else, working more industriously than everybody else is always a real lifesaver.

What Class Accomplishes

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

A fellow can't be expected to do so well in his classes if he can see the print in his arithmetic only one-tenth as well as the other pupils in the class. It was for this kind of fellow and girl that sight-saving classes have been formed in schools, public and private.

Is there a sight-saving class in your neighborhood schools?

If you have as many as two thousand scholars there ought to be. Because it is estimated that one out of a thousand scholars have visual defects which make them need such a class.

In sight-saving classes things are arranged so the pupils can see what is going on and understand just as well as anybody. Most of the work is oral, which saves the eyes and protects the nervous system of those who have progressive eye troubles, as well as those who might get headaches from eye strain.

Such classes are valuable, not only for children handicapped from eye defects, but also for their normal companions, because they relieve the grade teacher of the necessity of devoting a disproportionate amount of time to handicapped children. They relieve the educational system by gathering together in one class the repeaters who have failed to make their grade because of defective vision. They are valuable to the state because they invest in children who will become an asset rather than a liability to the community.

Children whose vision ranges from 20/70 to 20/200 in the better

eye after correction are especially desirable candidates for sight-saving classes.

Children from three grades can all be assembled in one sight-saving class and instructed together. It is gratifying to see those who have failed their grades while in regular classes pick up interest and forge ahead when conditions are adapted to their deficiencies.

To arrange for such a class is not difficult. The teacher should have some special training. Such training is offered in many summer courses all over the country. The windows, window shades, black-board space, etc., all have to be somewhat adapted to the needs of such a class.

The cost to the state is not large. Several states appropriate $250 a year for every child which needs such training, and this seems to be adequate.

For further information apply to The National Society for the Prevention of Blindness, 370 Seventh Avenue, New York, N. Y.

Editor's Note: Six pamphlets by Dr. Clending can now be obtained by sending 10 cents in coin, for each, and a self-addressed, stamped envelope, to Dr. Logan Clending, in care of this paper, or Central Press Association, 1435 East Twelfth Street, Cleveland, O. The pamphlets are: "Indigestion and Constipation," "Reducing and Gaining," "Infant Feeding," "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes," "Feminine Hygiene" and "The Care of Hair and Skin."

Breaks Heart Of Wife

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

"DEAR MISS LEE: I have been married for 25 years and have four children whom I adore, a beautiful home, car, servants, etc., but what does all this amount to when there isn't any love from the one who provides it all?"

"My husband has fallen deeply in love with a tall beautiful brunette who is divorced and has one boy. She laughs at his affection, and he seems to love her more for her coldness."

"I have gone to the girl personally and talked about giving him up, and she promised not to see him or call him again, but my husband, upon hearing it, raved like a mad man, saying nothing could stop him from loving his 'sugar'—his pet name for her."

"He follows her around and if he happens to see her with another man, he demands she go with him."

"Miss Lee, do you advise me to leave him and try to find love and happiness alone with my children, or wait and see if my fool of a husband wakes up to the fact that his love belongs to us? I am heart broken and can't go on like this, for all my friends and neighbors know about his affair. He even entertained her and her friends in my home."

"HEART BROKEN AT 48."

I think it would be wise for you to go away for a time at least, until you can look at the matter more objectively. Wouldn't it be fine if a wife could see the humorous side of a case like this without being all tangled up in her emotions of humiliation, jealousy and heartache?"

You suffer not only for yourself but for your children—for their reactions to a father who should be a person of some dignity whom they can admire and be proud of.

The older I grow the more convinced I am that most of us take everything in life too seriously. Now take this man of yours, for instance. Isn't he to be pitied?

Japan's diplomats meet western diplomats on common ground and talk with them upon a basis of mutual comprehension. The reasoning of their military men, however, is as difficult for the occidental mind to grasp as the fourth dimension.

The Chinese are irresponsible, and may perpetrate a massacre of foreigners. On the other hand, Japanese junkerdom may deliberately execute an American or a European who gives offense. Thus, there are elements of danger for the foreigners in both factions.

Not only had persons experienced in the ways of the east expected nothing of the sort; they distinctly expressed themselves as sure the islanders would not attempt it.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

He that turneth away his ear from hearing the law, even his prayer shall be abomination.—Proverbs, xxviii, 9.

SURPLUS "CROP"

Another surplus crop from which farmers are suffering is the perennial crop of advice to them to be "efficient." Wherever two or more farmers are gathered together, someone gets up and lays all their economic troubles to the fact that they manage their plants inefficiently. Advice of this kind is as deeprooted as witch-grass, as persistent as dandelions, as widespread as thistles. You cannot export it with the aid of debentures or equalize it by means of fees.

A good many farmers unquestionably are inefficient; but when we recall the percentage of merchants and manufacturers that go to the wall in this country even in normal years, we are not so sure that farmers, as a class, are any more inefficient than some other people.

Agriculture in the United States is passing through a period of revolutionary transition, as the result of the mechanization of production and the survival of a system of taxation that came into being when wealth lay far more in land than it does today. The fact that farmers the country over have done as well as they have, proves that they are not so inefficient as many speakers feel obliged to tell them they are. Constantly having to listen to the assertion that "efficiency" on the farm will lift all the farmer's troubles from his shoulders would make us, if we were farmers, chew crowbars and spit shingle nails.

OUR NEW AMBASSADOR

The translation of Secretary Mellon from the Treasury Department to the Court of St. James is a graceful reward for 11 years of faithful and efficient service in one of the most difficult positions in the Government. At the same time it is a move that promises to redound to the further benefit of this country. Ambassador Mellon will find in London, at this time abundant room for the exercise of his unchallenged financial ability and intimate acquaintance with the fiscal policy of the present Administration in Washington.

Appointed on March 4, 1921, Secretary Mellon has guided the financial craft of the United States through waters more troubled than any since Alexander Hamilton set out to devise a financial system for the young republic. A Secretary of the Treasury who would satisfy everybody is as difficult to conceive of as a tax that would not displease somebody. The administration of the Treasury Department is always under attack by groups that look upon the Treasury as a trough from which the public may feed at will, without refilling it from their pockets. Criticism has been Secretary Mellon's lot, as well as approbation.

The duties and responsibilities of the "watchdog of the Treasury" weigh heavily on a man of 76 years. At the Embassy in London a strong subordinate staff will probably leave Ambassador Mellon little to do beyond exercising his ripe judgment and displaying those qualities of gentleman and financier which already have won for him the esteem of the people of Great Britain. In Washington the elevation of Undersecretary Ogden L. Mills to the Cabinet will insure that the efficient conduct of the Treasury Department will continue unbroken.

TRAFFIC ACCIDENTS

The number of persons fatally injured in traffic accidents during the past year, increased. On the other hand, accidents to commercial vehicles decreased in the last six months of 1931 from the figure set by the first six months of the year.

The downward curve of accidents involving controlled commercial vehicles, set against the upward trend of general traffic fatalities, suggests that not all the loss of life caused by the operation of motor vehicles in this country every year is as unavoidable as many people profess to believe. The man who is driving for an employer realizes, if sufficiently impressed with the fact, that his job depends on avoiding damage to his employer's property and to the property and life or limb of other people. Consequently he is careful. What is more, an employer of drivers, if he is alive to his own financial interests, sees to it that his men are competent and are in fit condition to drive when they go to work.

The great majority of traffic accidents happen to passenger cars operated by their owners or others who feel no responsibility to anyone but themselves. The truck driver has to keep his mind on business. The operator of a pleasure car may be going to or from a party, with his mind more on pleasure than on the task immediately before him. Carelessness and recklessness bred of liquor or merely of the spirit of the occasion, when uncontrolled by considerations of employment, account for a good deal of life lost that might be saved if the driver of his own car used the same caution that is enjoined upon those who drive commercial vehicles.

Just how he is to be induced to do so may not be easy to say, although the experience of owners of fleets of trucks points to the probability that the fear of serious consequences to participants in all traffic accidents for which they are responsible, would tend to cut down the number of accidents to passenger cars, as it has cut down the number of accidents to commercial vehicles. As long as they feel that the law will deal lightly with recklessness and intoxication on the highway, a percentage of motorists will take a chance—and it is that chance which kills more people in the United States every year than any other out-of-door factor.

Troubles Of Genius

By JOHN ERSKINE
Author and Professor,
of Columbia University

(John Erskine was born in New York, Oct. 5, 1879. He is a graduate of Columbia, and has received numerous honorary degrees. He has been a teacher and professor in various colleges of United States and at present is a professor at Columbia. He was chairman of the administrative committee of the Juilliard School of Music, and since 1928 has been president. Some of his publications are: "Leading American Novelists," "Written English," "The Golden Treasury," "Great American Writers," "A Pageant in Honor of Roger Bacon," "The Shadowed Hour," "The Kind of Poetry," "The Enchanted Garden," "Galahad," "Prohibition and Christianity," "Adam and Eve," and "Penelope's Man." But it was the novel "The Private Life of Helen of Troy" that made him famous.)

There are no economic opportunities in creative music. A creative artist may make money, but if he does it will be an accident. The great problem in all creative art is that the artist has no right to ask society for support for something that society doesn't want. If we had a great musical genius in this country today, one who could write opera comparable to Wagner, he would have no economic career whatever.

There are not enough opera houses here. The income from his work would not pay his rent. In Germany, on the other hand, where opera is common a successful opera is equivalent to a run on Broadway. The same is true of the creator of symphonic compositions or chamber music. The composer and his type are the most precious things in human nature, and the first thing we ought to realize in this civilization is that they have no economic career.

MY NEW YORK

By JAMES ASWELL

NEW YORK.—In an Italian restaurant on Second avenue, the other day, a patron smashed a seltzer bottle over a waiter's head. The cops came and tried to find out what had started the trouble. "I told him to bring my omelet soft. I told him four times. He kept bringing them hard. I had to hit him, don't you see?"

He was a grave little man with saucer eyes. They took him off to jail. The papers, except one, spurned the human flavor of the occurrence, and printed something about a smoldering gangster feud over "territory."

Lingering in the wash of the thinning crowd after the ambulance drove away I remembered suddenly that I'd never been able to get a soft omelet either. I felt the utter anti-social urge to cheer.

HOP, SKIP AND JUMP

Luncheon today with a lady who knows Annette Kellerman. Annette made a big business out of swimming and now lives luxuriously in Paris, being associated with a manufacturer of bathing suits in this country, as stylist. Incidentally, the first Annette Kellerman suit, which shocked the land, would cause the wearer to resemble a lady swathed in mattresses today. Modern bathing suits, I am told (but who needs to be told?) have reached the absolute maximum of nudity, and if any change occurs it must be in the direction of modesty.

Among 147 American cities, New York ranked seventh and Chicago fourth from the top of the list of "most murderous towns," according to a survey recently revealed by a southern scientist. But I wouldn't advise anyone living in Hell's Kitchen to sell his bullet-proof vest, just the same.

Buddy Rogers' stock response when called on for a few words is the line about being mistaken for Will Rogers' son. The other evening when he pulled it someone yapped: "Yeah, the nose is similar." But the thing about Buddy that always surprises me is his heavy beard. It's almost as luxuriant as Jed Harris' except that Buddy keeps shaved.

A few nights before a recent flop show collapsed entirely, the house was strangely packed; not a vacant seat, and three rows of standees. But the box-office man told the story: The evening's gross intake was precisely $7, the audience being composed of friends of the producer.

OCCASION

"The Statue of Liberty," I was informed by a specialist in the history of the town, "has only flown an American flag once. Can you guess upon what occasion that was?"

"Offhand, I'd say it must've been when the armistice was announced in 1918."

"Oh, no! It was a much more important day than that. The flag flew in honor of Lindbergh's arrival!"

ECONOMY

A well known acquaintance called me up this morning to relay a yarn he had picked up the evening before along Broadway. "But don't mention my name," he cautioned, soberly.

"Why not?" I was genuinely surprised. There was nothing scandalous in the yarn he had communicated, and he is a gentleman who cannot be said exactly to retire into an anteroom when the photographers are about.

"Because," he confessed, "I just paid my life insurance, and I'm broke. If you mention me the clipping bureau will soak me ten or fifteen dollars."

DISCOVERY OF POLITICAL ELECTRICITY—1932

JAPANESE AND CHINESE HAVE LITTLE IN COMMON AS CHARACTERISTICS GO

WASHINGTON.—Because both nationalities are Mongolian, most occidentals, I think, regard the Japanese and Chinese as much alike.

As a matter of fact, they are two very different breeds of human beings.

Where there is an opportunity to compare them they do not even greatly resemble each other. In Shanghai, for example, a Japanese is as easy to recognize in the current of Chinese pedestrian traffic, as it is to pick out a Nordic in the sidewalk throng in the Italian quarter of an American city.

In other respects than the matter of appearance they have their distinguishing characteristics also.

My own experience in China was in the early days of the revolution, when there was considerable fighting in the country surrounding Shanghai, in connection with which my duties as a news correspondent frequently made it desirable for me to obtain photographs.

Not being an expert photographer myself, I occasionally employed a camera man, to accompany me on trips into areas where hostilities threatened or actually were in progress. For this purpose I soon discovered that a Japanese was vastly preferable, since he invariably stood his ground until he had obtained the desired picture or pictures, while a Chinese just as invariably ran away at the first sign of danger.

Apparently the Chinese were not exactly afraid. The Chinese troops stood their ground well enough, but Chinese camera men evidently did not consider it worth while to risk being shot for the price of a photograph or two.

On the other hand, it is well known that occidental business men engaged in trade in the Orient always choose Chinese rather than Japanese.

One feels the country's oppressiveness more acutely upon a lone trip into the interior.

The traveler doubtless slips a "45" into his pocket on leaving on one of these journeys and of course a "45" slug is sufficient to stop any Chinaman and a cliplet are enough to stop several. But obviously no imaginable amount of ammunition that one man can carry will stop 5,000 or 10,000 and he has an uneasy realization that, by some inadvertence, which he never will be able satisfactorily to explain, he may start that many on the war-path against him.

The difficulty is to make the rank-and-file of the Chinese understand.

Illustratively, they had, in my time in Shanghai, an unreasoning prejudice against vaccination, and a riot was very nearly precipitated in the settlement because the international authorities were disposed to insist on it in the face of a threatened smallpox outbreak.

In such fashions trouble is a possibility on almost no notice whatever, due to no cause which occidentals can foresee.

The Japanese, in their different way, are as unfathomable as the Chinese.

Their jeopardizing of the interests of other nationalities in the international settlement of Shanghai (where each has as much title, by treaty, to the respect of its rights as in its own home territory) was a demonstration of the unexpectedness of their policy, if it can be referred to as constituting anything so coherent as a policy.

Not only had persons experienced in the ways of the east expected nothing of the sort; they distinctly expressed themselves as sure the islanders would not attempt it.

Japan's diplomats meet western diplomats on common ground and talk with them upon a basis of mutual comprehension. The reasoning of their military men, however, is as difficult for the occidental mind to grasp as the fourth dimension.

The Chinese are irresponsible, and may perpetrate a massacre or foreigners. On the other hand, Japanese junkerdom may deliberately execute an American or a European who gives offense. Thus, there are elements of danger for the foreigners in both factions.

ALL of US

By MARSHALL MASLIN

We Flee and Are Afraid
We Are Wise Before We Know
Is Everything Topsy-Turvy?
Everything is topsy-turvy. Didn't you know that? Yes, you did—but you haven't put it into words. And we often know truths without discovering that we know them.

We are afraid because we run away. We think, to be sure, that we run away because we are afraid, but that isn't true. . . . We face a roaring lion and our feet take us swiftly away from that place. Then fear floods our being and we shiver. But until we fled we were not afraid.

We face a great peril and we plant our feet solidly and strike out boldly. Then, afterward, we are brave. Something within us comes to our rescue, strengthens our arm, makes more stubborn our courage.

A gland within us pours a strengthening elixir into our veins and we are twice the battling warrior we had ever dreamed of being.

We love money before we get it. We want something else first; we want conflict, power, a testing of our strength; money comes along and takes possession of us. Then we fall in love with its bright golden face and we are misers. . . .

But we were misers before ever we had money. . . . We are not arrogant because we have power. We were arrogant first and sought food on which our arrogance might feed.

Men are not wise because they have a great fund of knowledge. Many a man is wise who knows little that is fed to boys and girls in school. Many a child is wise before he knows his letters. . . .

Women are not tender because their pity is aroused. They act gently toward the poor, the suffering, the betrayed and then their pity blooms like a flower. The tiger loves blood before he has seized his piteous prey, and the humble are gentle before they have sweetened their lives with humility.

Men act and then they give their reason. They are themselves first, before they try to explain and justify themselves.

Everything SEEMS topsy-turvy, but it is not really so. If the world seems awry and contradictory, it is because we—too often—are expecting to be admired for our marvelous ability to stand on our heads. Life is not wild and frantic—it is serene and steady enough for those who are not turning flip-flops.

What Class Accomplishes

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

A fellow can't be expected to do so well in his classes if he can see the print in his arithmetic only one-tenth as well as the other pupils in the class.

It was for this kind of fellow and girl that sight-saving classes have been formed in schools, public and private.

Is there a sight-saving class in your neighborhood schools?

If you have as many as two thousand scholars there ought to be. Because it is estimated that one out of a thousand scholars have visual defects which make them need such a class.

In sight-saving classes things are arranged so the pupils can see what is going on and understand just as well as anybody. Most of the work is oral, which saves the eyes and protects the nervous system of those who have progressive eye troubles, as well as those who might get headaches from eye strain.

Such classes are valuable, not only for children handicapped from eye defects, but also for their normal companions, because they relieve the grade teacher of the necessity of devoting a disproportionate amount of time to handicapped children. They relieve the educational system by gathering together in one class the repeaters who have failed to make their grade because of defective vision. They are valuable to the state because they invest in children who will become an asset rather than a liability to the community.

Children whose vision ranges from 20/70 to 20/200 in the better

eye after correction are especially desirable candidates for sight-saving classes.

Children from three grades can all be assembled in one sight-saving class and instructed together. It is gratifying to see those who have failed their grades while in regular classes pick up interest and forge ahead when conditions are adapted to their deficiencies.

To arrange for such a class is not difficult. The teacher should have some special training. Such training is offered in many summer courses all over the country. The windows, window shades, blackboard space, etc., all have to be somewhat adapted to the needs of such a class.

The cost to the state is not large. Several states appropriate $250 a year for every child which needs such training, and this seems to be adequate.

For further information apply to The National Society for the Prevention of Blindness, 370 Seventh Avenue, New York, N. Y.

Editor's Note: Six pamphlets by Dr. Clending can now be obtained by sending 10c in coin for each, and a self-addressed, stamped envelope, to Dr. Logan Clending, in care of this paper, or Central Press Association, 1435 East Twelfth street, Cleveland, O. The pamphlets are: "Indigestion and Constipation," "Reducing and Gaining," "Infant Feeding," "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes," "Feminine Hygiene" and "The Care of Hair and Skin."

Breaks Heart Of Wife

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

"DEAR MISS LEE: I have been married for 25 years and have four children whom I adore, a beautiful home, car, servants, etc. but what does all this amount to when there isn't any love from the one who provides it all?"

"My husband has fallen deeply in love with a beautiful brunette who is divorced and has one boy. She laughs at his affection, and he seems to love her more for her coldness."

"I have gone to the girl personally and talked about giving him up, and she promised not to see him or call him again, but my husband, upon hearing it, raved like a mad man, saying nothing could stop him from loving his 'sugar'—his pet name for her."

"He follows her around and if he happens to see her with another man, he demands she go with him."

"Miss Lee, do you advise me to leave him and try to find love and happiness alone with my children, or wait and see if my foot of a husband wakes up to the fact that his love belongs to us? I am heart broken and can't go on like this."

"In such fashions trouble is a possibility on almost no notice whatever, due to no cause which occidentals can foresee."

"HEART BROKEN AT 48."

I think it would be wise for you to go away for a time at least, until you can look at the matter more objectively. Wouldn't it be fine if a wife could see the humorous side of a case like this without being all tangled up in her emotions of humiliation, jealousy and heartache?

You suffer not only for yourself but for your children—for their reactions to a father who should be a person of some dignity whom they can admire and be proud of.

The older I grow the more convinced I am that most of us take everything in life too seriously. Now take this man of yours, for instance. Isn't he to be pitied?

HEART BROKEN CHERRIE: It is a very trying situation when your best girl friend and your sweetest don't like one another. I wouldn't give either of them up if I could help it. I wish you.

If I had to, however, I'd decide which meant the most to me, and drop the other.

DISCOURAGED: You won't always be happy no matter whom you marry, my dear. You are wise to hesitate to marry a man who is rude. He'll be himself when you are married, so you know what to expect—if you go through with it.

Deep Breaths Give Beauty

By GLADYS GLAD

One of our foremost authorities, on weight reduction says that the woman who begins to take 50 deep breaths properly every day simply cannot become fat. Also, that if she already is fat, she just can't stay that way. For air acts in the capacity of a tonic and stabilizer for the body.

You might be inclined to scoff at this contention. But there is a lot of truth in it. For if a girl is trying to reduce, she needs a great deal of oxygen to help oxidize the fatty tissues that she hopes to disperse. When fresh air enters the lungs it penetrates to every muscle and cell in the body. It oxidizes the fatty reserve in the muscles and burns up poisons. And it stimulates the circulation, causing the blood to run briskly through the veins and to carry away all poisonous wastes.

I'm not saying that any girl can continue to gorge herself with heavy, rich, fattening foods, can refrain entirely from exercising, and yet still can reduce her weight merely by taking 50 deep breaths a day. But if she amends her diet sensibly, in the manner, for instance, indicated in my "New Figure" booklet, and practices the exercises outlined therein, or ones equally as effective, the deep breathing routine will assist greatly in hastening the reduction of her weight.

The casual breathing of the average woman does not supply nearly enough oxygen to aerate the tissues and purify the blood. So she should practice deep breathing consciously until it becomes her natural breathing. She should breathe, entailing full expansion of the abdomen, when she rises in the morning.

She should breathe deeply as often as possible during the day. And she should breathe deeply before retiring at night.

Deep-breathing while walking is especially beneficial for the woman who is attempting to reduce, as it has the added benefit of the exercise afforded by the walking.

ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS

Tired Feet

Flo: To relieve tired feet, soak them in a tub of warm water to which has been added a cup of Epsom salts. After the soaking, run cold water over the feet.

Buttermilk

Fatty: Buttermilk is not fattening. You may safely drink as many as two quarts a day. Grapes, however, are fattening.

Stains

Brown Eyes: Make a smooth paste of powdered pumice and lemon juice and rub it on the discolorations. Rinse the hands well after each time that you use the paste.

SPORT SNAP SHOTS

FRAMED

There's an old saying which has it that "there is nothing new under the sun," but Xenia Central High basketballers disputed this adage Friday night. They won a basketball game.

Many fans had lately belonged to a school of thought which held that the Buccaneers would not win another contest this season.

Against Fairview High School the Xenia quintet gave a dazzling exhibition, dazzling as compared with some of its previous games.

Although their hope of successfully defending their Miami Valley League championship is a forlorn one at best, the Bucs at least have a chance next Friday night to rock the pinnacle on which Greenville is perched.

Greenville, which lost its first league game and has now won four straight, would be assured of no worse than a tie for the title should it defeat Xenia in its last league contest. It almost becomes a necessity for Greenville to beat the Bucs here this week-end, because Sidney, which has also lost but one game, will likely win its remaining two with Piqua and Fairview.

On the far-fetched possibility that two things will happen, there is still a chance for Xenia to wind up in a tie for the league leadership. For this to happen, these two things must occur: Xenia must defeat Greenville and Sidney must lose to either Piqua or Fairview. Oh yes. We almost forgot. There is a third condition. Xenia must also win from Piqua.

The third or fourth annual—It slips our mind just which—free throw tourney will be held in conjunction with the 1932 Greene County Class B high school basketball tournament at Bath High School in Osborn, February 26 and 27.

Supt. C. A. Devoe, of Jefferson Twp. schools, tournament official, announces that each of the eight schools entered in the tournament will be permitted to enter two representatives in the foul shooting competition.

The free throw tossers will be entitled to five practice throws, after which they will shoot thirty-five fouls, just before scheduled tourney games.

The two foul shooters who emerge from the Greene County contest with the highest averages, will represent this county in the regional free throw contest at Wilmington College March 4 and 5.

Supt. Devoe also informs this department that in the absence of the annual tourney competition for girls' teams of the county, a suggestion has been advanced to select an all-star feminine team from the eight schools to play the Bath Twp. High girls' team on Saturday night, February 27, preliminary to the tourney finals.

The Osborn girls are admittedly the class of the county. Cedarville girls lost to the Osborn lassies, 22 to 9, Friday night and none of the other county teams is as strong as Cedarville.

East High School's basketball team, using eleven players during the game, repeated a previous victory over the Wilberforce Hi-Y cagers by winning a return contest, 24 to 6, at East High gymnasium Monday night. East led at the intermission, 12 to 2. East High "Lion Tamers" won over the Wilberforce "Lion Tamers," 10 to 9, in an exciting preliminary. East will resume its Hi-Y League competition February 19 against the Cincinnati Hi-Y team at the local gym.

CADET RIFLE TEAM BOOKS LIMA MATCH

Arrangements have been completed for a rifle match between the Cadet Rifle Club of the O. S. and S. Home and the American Legion Junior Rifle Club of Lima, to be fired at Lima, O., Saturday, February 27.

Competing in the National Rifle Association of America, junior division, bi-weekly inter-club matches, second series, the cadet club fired its first match of the season a week ago, scoring 479 points out of a possible 500, and finishing seventh with thirty-two teams firing.

The Home team consisted of ten members, firing in the prone position at a distance of fifty feet. The five high scores counted in the team total.

FRESHMEN VICTORS OVER SOPHOMORES IN SCHOOL LEAGUE

With both teams giving a rough and tumble exhibition, particularly in the last quarter, the freshmen cagers continued unbeaten by defeating the sophomores 19 to 9, in the Intra-Mural League basketball rivalry at Central High School gym Monday afternoon.

The frosh assumed a 6 to 2 lead in the first period and led throughout. At halftime the count was 8 to 5 and when the third period ended, the sophs trailed, 13 to 7.

Dalton, forward, tallied eight points for the freshmen and again sparked on offense, while Acton played a good defensive game for the sophomores.

BROOKLYN TEAM TO PLAY FT. WAYNE AT DAYTON COLISEUM

Brooklyn Americans will face the Fort Wayne Guards at the fairgrounds coliseum in Dayton Tuesday night in a professional basketball game that shapes up as one of the feature attractions of the year.

The Brooklyn lineup will include Benny Borgman credited with being the master sharp-shooter of professional basketball, and Honey Russell, All-American guard.

Others on the team include Lou Spindell, the pro game's finest young player, Ray Kennedy, Bob Grody, six-foot five-inch center, and "Bo" McElwain.

BRIDGE PLAYERS LAUNCH TOURNEY

Iron Lantern Tuesday night, commencing at 8:15 o'clock, with all of the original entrants still eligible to compete.

Because of the few number of teams enrolled in the auction division of the bridge competition, the local auction teams are expected to finish their preliminary round play at Springfield Tuesday night.

The contract bridge devotees will continue their play in Xenia and it is possible that the top 50 per cent of the local teams will go to Dayton Thursday and Friday to contest in the city semi-finals there.

Twenty-four hands were played here by all local teams in the first evening of competition Monday night, and after the scores were counted it was revealed that the team of Mrs. Walker Gibney and Mrs. Henry C. Flynn is leading in the contract division with a plus net score of 4,605.

Entrants in the local bridge play are: contract division—Mr. and Mrs. John E. Barlow, Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Murphy, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Fisher, Mrs. C. A. Weaver and Mrs. D. W. Cherry, Mrs. H. S. Se-Sound and Mrs. J. A. Chew, Mrs. Henry C. Flynn and Mrs. Walker Gibney; auction division—Mrs. J. R. McCorkell and Mrs. George Recto, Xenia, William B. Groves and Donald G. Hartman, Yellow Springs.

Shanghai. The guns were carried both by motor truck and destroyers.

Today's hostilities began at 5:00 a. m., when a Japanese artilleryman, at a previously arranged signal, fired two salvos of gunfire on the Chapel sector.

Mamoru Shigemitsu, Japanese minister to China, declared the fighting would be carried on until the Chinese forces were driven at least twenty miles from Shanghai.

The announcement followed the protest of Vice-Admiral Sir Howard Kelly, commander of the British naval forces, asking that hostilities end immediately.

The Chinese were understood to be ready to accept the proposal. Japanese soldiers were landed in the international settlement and rushed to relieve the bluejackets in the Chapel area as part of the day's offensive against the Chinese there.

What was practically the heaviest rifle and machine-gunning, which had occurred since the outbreak of the Chapel fighting, was carried on through the early morning darkness, while howitzers and field pieces on both sides potted away at each other.

During one of the Chinese spurts of bombardment in the darkness several foreign inspectors were isolated within the Dixwell Road police station for several hours.

They were unable to go out and they were cut off from telephoning their families and friends. Within an hour during this "imprisonment" over fifty Chinese shells landed within from eighty to 100 yards of the station house. One shell shattered a section of the wall of the building.

The tropically-softened American doughboys of the 31st infantry, men of the second battalion, had a strong sample of the job that is ahead of them as they took over defense of the settlement boundary early in the night.

Persistent firing and a raw, drizzling rain which penetrated within their very blood helped to make the night uneasy.

Besides lacking sufficient warm clothing, the infantrymen had to borrow helmets from the American marines, having too few of their own.

Brigadier General George Fleming, commander of the Shanghai defense force, warned Chinese soldiers that he would "shoot them down" in the event they entered the international settlement.

GREW NAMED

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9.—Joseph C. Grew, one of the veterans of the American diplomatic service, now ambassador to Turkey, was named today by President Hoover to be ambassador to Japan. He will succeed at Tokyo W. Cameron Forbes who announced some time ago his desire to retire as soon as the President could find a successor.

REDUCTION PROGRAM TRUMPETS PEACE AS CHINA IS WAR-TORN

There is no surer evidence that self-restraint from over-armed security peace. There is more security to be had in friendly cooperation between nations than in reliance on force. The best defense a nation can have is the good-will of its neighbors.

"Nevertheless, and in spite of the fact that we ourselves have reduced the personnel of our land forces to a figure below the proportion reached by any great European power, we are here to cooperate to the utmost of our ability. We are prepared to discuss and to extend to other fields the principles of limitation and reduction of armaments already established and to examine and accept new principles if they contribute genuinely to the end defined."

Not once in his speech did Gibson mention the unofficial but nonetheless deadly conflict raging in China, but the proposal for the protection of civilian populations against aerial bombings was considered to have grown out of the extensive bombing operations carried on against unfortified towns in Manchuria and China proper by Japanese airplanes.

It was evident that Gibson's mind was uppermost in Gibson's mind. He made an impassioned plea for success at the conference. He dwelt at great length on the difficulties facing the meeting, but declared that failure of the conference would be regarded by the peoples of the world as inexcusable.

The Crossley Fight

Copyright, 1932, by Central Press Association, Inc.

John L. "Dressed Up"

ONE AFTERNOON as John L. came to bat in a ball game with friends on the Boston Common, his manager, Billy Madden, appeared in the crowd and waved at him. "I've good news," called Billy. "Be right over as soon as I hit a home run." Sullivan joked back. The pitcher threw a low ball, John L.'s favorite, and he socked it for a home run! After scoring, Sullivan ran up to Madden. "What is it, Bill?" he asked. "They had the man to stop John L."

Madden Tells Good News

"I'VE MATCHED you with Fred Crossley in Philadelphia for July 11," Madden answered. John L. was delighted. Here was his chance to get the "reputation" Ryan, the champion, demanded. Crossley was a giant lumber jack, weighing 300 pounds, but so tall that he did not appear stout. Crossley was so huge that Philadelphia fight fans figured he could not be beaten. They thought they had the man to stop John L.

Fred Crossley

SULLIVAN'S baseball playing had kept him in top shape so that he had to train but little for the fight. When John L. arrived in Philadelphia he noticed posters advertising the fight. Under Crossley's picture was the line, "The Next World's Champion." Though Crossley, who was far larger than the modern giant, Primo Carnera, greatly outweighed him, Sullivan and Madden were confident of a victory.

Sullivan Sees Ryan

WHEN THE men entered the ring Sullivan got the greatest reception by the fans. The crowd compared sizes and figured John L. the underdog. As Sullivan stood in his corner awaiting the signal he spied a powerful young man in a ringside seat. It was Paddy Ryan. So the champion had come to watch him! Well, thought John L., here was where Ryan would see him get that "rep."

SPORT SNAP SHOTS

FRAMED
by Phil

There's an old saying which has it that "there is nothing new under the sun," but Xenia Central High basketballers disputed this adage Friday night. They won a basketball game.

Many fans had lately belonged to a school of thought which held that the Buccaneers would not win another contest this season.

Against Fairview High School the Xenia quintet gave a dazzling exhibition, dazzling as compared with some of its previous games.

Although their hope of successfully defending their Miami Valley League championship is a forlorn one at best, the Bucs at least have a chance next Friday night to rock the pinnacle on which Greenville is perched.

Greenville, which lost its first league game and has now won four straight, would be assured of no worse than a tie for the title should it defeat Xenia in its last league contest. It almost becomes a necessity for Greenville to beat the Bucs here this week-end, because Sidney, which has also lost but one game, will likely win its remaining two with Piqua and Fairview.

On the far-fetched possibility that two things will happen, there is still a chance for Xenia to wind up in a tie for the league leadership. For this to happen, these two things must occur: Xenia must defeat Greenville and Sidney must lose to either Piqua or Fairview. Oh yes, we almost forgot. There is a third condition. Xenia must also win from Piqua.

The third or fourth annual—It slips our mind just which—free throw tourney will be held in connection with the 1932 Greene County Class B high school basketball tournament at Bath High School in Osborn, February 26 and 27.

Supt. C. A. Devoe, of Jefferson Twp. schools, tournament official, announces that each of the eight schools entered in the tournament play will be permitted to enter two representatives in the foul shooting competition.

The free throw tossers will be entitled to five practice throws, after which they will shoot thirty-five fouls, just before scheduled tourney games.

The two foul shooters who emerge from the Greene County contest with the highest averages, will represent this county in the regional free throw contest at Wilmington College March 4 and 5.

Supt. Devoe also informs this department that in the absence of the annual tourney competition for girls' teams of the county, a suggestion has been advanced to select an all-star feminine team from the eight schools to play the Bath Twp. High girls' team on Saturday night, February 27, preliminary to the tourney finals. The Osborn girls' team are admittedly the class of the county. Cedarville girls lost to the Osborn ladies, 22 to 9, Friday night and none of the other county teams is as strong as Cedarville.

EAST HIGH DEFEATS WILBERFORCE FIVE

East High School's basketball team, using eleven players during the game, repeated a previous victory over the Wilberforce Hi-Y cagers by winning a return contest, 24 to 6, at East High gymnasium Monday night. East led at the intermission, 12 to 2. East High "Lion Tamers" won over the Wilberforce "Lion Tamers," 10 to 9, in an exciting preliminary. East will resume its Hi-Y League competition February 19 against the Cincinnati Hi-Y team at the local gym.

FRESHMEN VICTORS OVER SOPHOMORES IN SCHOOL LEAGUE

With both teams giving a rough and tumble exhibition, particularly in the last quarter, the freshmen cagers continued unbeaten by defeating the sophomores 19 to 9, in the intra-Mural League basketball rivalry at Central High School gym Monday afternoon.

The frosh assumed a 6 to 2 lead in the first period and led throughout. At halftime the count was 8 to 5 and when the third period ended, the sophs trailed, 13 to 7.

Dalton, forward, tallied eight points for the freshmen and again sparkled on offense, while Acton played a good defensive game for the sophomores.

Iron Lantern Tuesday night, commencing at 8:15 o'clock, with all of the original entrants still eligible to compete.

Because of the few number of teams enrolled in the auction division of the bridge competition, the local auction teams are expected to finish their preliminary round play at Springfield Tuesday night.

The contract bridge devotees will continue their play in Xenia and it is possible that the top 50 per cent of the local teams will go to Dayton Thursday and Friday to contest in the city semi-finals there.

Twenty-four hands were played here by all local teams in the first evening of competition Monday night, and after the scores were tallied it was revealed that the team of Mrs. Walker Gibney and Mrs. Henry C. Flynn is leading in the contract division with a plus net score of 4,605.

Entrants in the local bridge play are: contract division—Mr. and Mrs. John E. Barlow, Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Murphy, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Fisher, Mrs. C. A. Weaver and Mrs. D. W. Cherry, Mrs. H. S. LeSourd and Mrs. J. A. Chew, Mrs. Henry C. Flynn and Mrs. Walker Gibney; auction division—Mrs. J. B. McCorkell and Mrs. George Reckert, Xenia; William B. Groves and Donald G. Hartman, Yellow Springs.

LULL FOLLOWS HARD BATTLE IN ATTEMPT TO TAKE MOTOR ROAD

Shanghai. The guns were carried both by motor truck and destroyer.

Today's hostilities began at 5:00 a. m., when a Japanese artilleryman, at a previously arranged signal, fired two salvos of gunfire on the Chapel sector.

Mamoru Shigemitsu, Japanese minister to China, declared the fighting would be carried on until the Chinese forces were driven at least twenty miles from Shanghai. The announcement followed the protest of Vice-Admiral Sir Howard Kelly, commander of the British naval forces, asking that hostilities end immediately.

The Chinese were understood to be ready to accept the proposal. Japanese soldiers were landed in the international settlement and rushed to relieve the bluejackets in the Chapel area as part of the day's offensive against the Chinese there.

What was practically the heaviest rifle and machine-gunning, which had occurred since the outbreak of the Chapel fighting, was carried on through the early morning darkness, while howitzers and field pieces on both sides potted away at each other.

During one of the Chinese spurts of bombardment in the darkness several foreign inspectors were isolated within the Dixwell Road police station for several hours.

They were unable to go out and they were cut off from telephoning their families and friends. Within an hour during this "imprisonment" over fifty Chinese shells landed within from eighty to 100 yards of the station house. One shell shattered a section of the wall of the building.

The tropically-softened American doughboys of the 31st infantry, men of the second battalion, had a strong sample of the job that's ahead of them as they took over defense of the settlement boundary early in the night.

Persistent firing and a raw, drizzling rain which penetrated within their very blood helped to make the night uneasy.

Besides lacking sufficient warm clothing, the infantrymen had to borrow helmets from the American marines, having too few of their own.

Brigadier General George Fleming, commander of the Shanghai defense force, warned Chinese soldiers that he would "shoot them down" in the event they entered the international settlement.

GREW NAMED

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9.—Joseph C. Grew, one of the veterans of the American diplomatic service, now ambassador to Turkey, was named today by President Hoover to be ambassador to Japan. He will succeed at Tokyo W. Cameron Forbes who announced some time ago his desire to retire as soon as the President could find a successor.

REDUCTION PROGRAM TRUMPETS PEACE AS CHINA IS WAR-TORN

There is no surer evidence that self-restraint from over-armed state safeguards peace. There is more security to be had in friendly cooperation between nations than in reliance on force. The best defense a nation can have is the goodwill of its neighbors.

Nevertheless, in spite of the fact that we ourselves have reduced the personnel of our land forces to a figure below the proportion reached by any great European power, we are here to cooperate to the utmost of our ability. We are prepared to discuss and to extend to other fields the principles of limitation and reduction of armaments already established and to examine and accept new principles if they contribute genuinely to the end desired.

Not once in his speech did Gibson mention the conflict raging in China, but the proposal for the protection of civilian populations against aerial bombings was considered to have grown out of the extensive bombing operations carried on against unfortified towns in Manchuria and China proper by Japanese airplanes.

It was evident the Sino-Japanese conflict was uppermost in Gibson's mind. He made an impassioned plea for success at the conference. He dwelt at great length on the difficulties facing the meeting, but declared that failure of the conference would be regarded by the peoples of the world as inexcusable.

Lipstick Girl

CHAPTER 44

THAT EVENING, Marcia found a special delivery letter from Vivian awaiting her. She tore it open eagerly, and scanned the one page hurriedly. Vivian was losing no time. She would be in New York Friday night—that was tomorrow. Marcia estimated—and could stay for ten days. She had obtained a two weeks' leave of absence from the office. She had not dared to give up her position until she had seen New York, and ascertained if she could find work there. Marcia was a darling for suggestion that she might come and stay with her. She could scarcely wait to see her.

So was Marcia eager to see Vivian. Too bad, she thought, that Vivian was not here for the party tonight. But there would be others she was confident. Three beautiful girls and no parties? Impossible. In New York. She went out to tell Connie, hurrying down the hall toward the Deitz living room. Marcia had made arrangements to have her breakfast and dinners with them when she was at home, for convenience, and because Mrs. Deitz had insisted that there was no reason why she shouldn't. It would be very little extra work for Helga, and would save Marcia much inconvenience; also, the girls could come home from work together.

Marcia rapped on the closed doors, and turned the knob, calling "yoo-hoo," as she entered. Already, she was a part of the household, and enjoying it immensely. "Good evening, Mrs. Deitz," she smiled, and added with a glad tone in her voice, "Vivian's coming, and will be here tomorrow night."

"That's lovely," Mrs. Deitz commented. "I'm so glad," Connie enthused. "Isn't it too bad she's not here tonight?"

"That's what I was thinking, too. Well, we shall just have to scare up some more parties after she arrives," she laughed gaily. "Collect all the invitations you can, tonight. That's a shocking thing to say, isn't it, Mrs. Deitz?"

Mrs. Deitz laughed with her. "It would have been a generation ago. But it is probably very mild now."

While the girls were dressing for the party that night, Mrs. Deitz hovered over them, obeying Marcia's instructions for Connie's address, and enjoying herself more than she had in years. It brought back vivid memories of the past—the happy ones. Marcia thought she almost looked younger, and reflected that it was a pity such a woman had allowed tragedy to annihilate her. She was actually quite a young woman, as age was now regarded.

"Just imagine, mother!" Connie was exclaiming for the dozenth time. "A pent-house party. Isn't Marcia sweet to take me?"

Mrs. Deitz brow wrinkled slightly. It was not so easy to allow this lone sheltered fledgling to leave the nest. She wished that chaperones were still the proper thing for young girls in society, and that she might accompany them in that capacity. Rather, she guessed that more probably this pent-house party was a bachelor apartment, and there would not be a married couple in the group. But she couldn't change the modern world nor the way of a maid who yearns for youth and pleasure. And she trusted Marcia had taken care of herself for a long time, and she conceded that Connie might be capable of doing the same things, if she were given a chance.

In the sordid experience of these past fifteen years, Mrs. Deitz had had rooms to many girls, but it had taken a girl like Marcia to open her eyes to Connie's world, and her lonely, unnatural existence. If she did not approve of her friendship with a girl like Marcia, Connie might not be so confidential about the next friend she chose, and that one might prove to be less worthy.

Marcia arranged both Connie's and her own coiffure as she had done so effectively a few evenings previously. Mrs. Deitz approved with mounting pleasure. And when her daughter was arrayed in the gown and its glamorous accessories, she was as much surprised over the effect as was Connie herself. True, the white jacket was a bit fur instead of ermine, and the ruby and diamond bracelets were not genuine, but they created almost the same effect in their sparkling newness. Connie's appearance was even more striking than Marcia had anticipated. If ever a human being were transformed by clothes, Connie was. Her pale wishfulness was now only an elusive quality that contrasted with more daring effect of the costume. Her hair glinted more golden, and her gray eyes were darker, adding mystery and depth to her face.

Connie stared at her image in the long pier mirror which had reflected her mother's beauty upon many important occasions. Then she turned and clasped Marcia around the neck as a happy child might have done. "Oh, I never dreamed that it was possible for me to look like that!" Tears glistened and turned up eye-lashes, and made her look even more childish.

Then she embraced her mother. "And you, little mother, for buying me these gorgeous things. Don't you think I look wonderful, darling?"

"Yes, Connie, you do—lovelier than I had dreamed that you could be," she confessed. "Forgive me for hiding you away with me in my wretchedness. There were tears in her own eyes. 'We both have much for which to thank Marcia. Be good, my dear, and deserve her for a friend. I am glad that you are finding life, at last.'"

Marcia dismissed their gratitude with a happy chuckle. "Oh, if I have done anything for Connie, that just makes me happier. You see, I really had a selfish reason, after all. I wanted a chum, and one I could be proud of. But that's the way it always works out, isn't it? Whenever we give happiness to others, it brings happiness to us. Well, are we all ready? It's about time for our prince and coach to arrive," glancing at the clock. She wore the same green tulle gown, which DuMott had declared was a creation for her alone. Even had she been able to afford a new dress, there would have been no time to look for one; furthermore, no one who would be there had seen the dress except DuMott. And he was only one who would know that she could not afford a new dress like that every week. Besides, she was not in love with him, which made a difference. Had she been, and knowing his fastidious nature, she might have exerted herself further to attract him.

Instead, she was delighted at his expression when he first saw Connie. Marcia took her arm and said, winking mischievously at Connie, "May I present you to—Miss Deitz, Mr. DuMott?"

His obvious astonishment affected his speech, which was unusual. Why—of course, I know Miss Deitz," he bowed.

"But not this Miss Deitz," Marcia insisted. "Did you ever see a lovelier transformation, Mr. Beauty-seeker?"

"I never did," he admitted. "Women are beyond understanding. A dash of color, a few yards of cloth and a jewel placed here or there, and they are transformed. Please do not take these remarks offensively, Miss Deitz," he added. "You always were lovely—in such clothes as these, you are—well, I shall have to resort to French for an adequate word. You are, 'disenchante'."

"You think I look wonderful, darling?"

"Yes, Connie, you do—lovelier than I had dreamed that you could be," she confessed. "Forgive me for hiding you away with me in my wretchedness. There were tears in her own eyes. ## Swedish Star To Return, Found Diet Plenty Stern

After four years off the screen, Anna Q. Nilsson is coming back to pictures. Feeling fit and thirty pounds lighter on her return from Europe, the Swedish star will make tests this week at several major studios. She says she can't bear to be away from the cameras any longer.

Anna's story during the last few years is one of many obstacles overcome. Injured by a fall from a horse, she was off the screen for many months. Then she tried to come back too soon. The result was a picture "The Blockade," followed by a relapse.

It wasn't until her return from Europe last year that she thought again of a comeback. By this time slim figures were at the height of their vogue. Anna decided to take off thirty pounds. To do this she went on a starvation diet and was stricken with pneumonia. During her illness she spent five weeks at a hospital under an assumed name. But now, under the guidance of Freddie Frelich, her manager for years, she's ready for the adventure of the talkies.

A plumbing contractor in Dallas, Texas, wrote Buster Keaton: "I have read that you are to make a picture called 'The Passionate Plumber.' In this film, please let me ask you to use a Stillson wrench instead of a monkey-wrench and a fire-pot instead of a blow-torch. There are more than a million plumbers in U. S. A. alone and they will be grateful if you correct these absurdities." Buster followed his advice about the

ALLEGED FORGER IS SENTENCED TO OHIO PEN; CHANGES PLEA

Appearing in Common Pleas Court Monday, C. W. Sweeney, Middlefield, O., east of Cleveland, heard himself sentenced to serve from one to twenty years in Ohio penitentiary on the forged charge on which he was indicted by the January grand jury.

Indicted on two counts for forging and passing a worthless check for $38.92 last December 19, Sweeney withdrew a previous plea of not guilty and pleaded guilty. Sentence was passed by Judge R. L. Gowdy.

Sweeney, reputed to have left a worthless check trail across Greene and Clinton Counties, was arrested by an officer at Yellow Springs after he cashed the $38.92 check, marked for "hogs," signed with the name "T. M. Thomas" and made payable to S. W. James. The check was on the Miami Deposit Bank in Yellow Springs.

Sweeney was alleged by authorities to have passed at least two bogus checks in Greene County and six in Wilmington for a total of $285.21. Sheriff John Baughn found $384 in the man's pockets and this money was used to make some of the checks good.

Good looks aren't always luck

Sparkling eyes and a smooth complexion depend on good health. The beautiful woman guards against constipation. She knows this condition can cause headaches, sallow skin, dull eyes, pimples, premature aging.

Protect yourself from constipation by eating a delicious cereal. Tests show Kellogg's ALL-BRAN provides "bulk" to exercise the intestines, and Vitamin B to tone the intestinal tract. In addition, ALL-BRAN furnishes blood-building iron.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is similar to that of lettuce. Within the body, it forms a soft mass, which gently clears the intestines of wastes. How much safer than pills and drugs—so often habit-forming.

Two tablespoonfuls daily—in serious cases, with every meal—will correct most types of constipation. If your trouble is not relieved in this way, see your doctor.

Serve as a cereal, with milk or cream, or use in cooking. At all grocers. In the red-and-green package. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

CHECK PASSER FREE AFTER AGREEING TO REIMBURSE VICTIM

William H. Deutsch, 37 bond jumper, pleaded guilty to a fraudulent check charge when arraigned in Common Pleas Court Monday and escaped prosecution on his promise to make full restitution for two worthless checks amounting to $500 each, given to James Malav, azos, part owner of the Xenia Candy Kitchen, E. Main St.

The $1,000 will be refunded on the partial payment plan. Judge R. L. Gowdy stipulated that Deutsch pay $250 down and the remaining $750 within sixty days. He must also pay court costs and other expenses incurred in connection with his case. Meanwhile, he is given his liberty.

Apprehended at Sandusky, O., last August after being the object of a state-wide search for a year, Deutsch was returned to Xenia and held for grand jury action. Released on $1,000 bail, Deutsch once more became a fugitive from justice. He was indicted by the October grand jury in the bogus check charge but was not rearrested until last Thursday at Cincinnati. Word of his arrest was received by Xenia police just as arrangements were being made to declare his $1,000 bond forfeit.

Appearing in Common Pleas Court Monday, C. W. Sweeney, Middlefield, O., east of Cleveland, heard himself sentenced to serve from one to twenty years in Ohio penitentiary on the forgery charge on which he was indicted by the January grand jury.

Indicted on two counts for forging and passing a worthless check for $38.92 last December 19, Sweeney withdrew a previous plea of not guilty and pleaded guilty. Sentence was passed by Judge R. L. Gowdy.

Sweeney, reputed to have left a worthless check trail across Greene and Clinton Counties, was arrested by an officer at Yellow Springs after he cashed the $38.92 check, marked for "hogs," signed with the name "T. M. Thomas" and made payable to S. W. James. The check was on the Miami Deposit Bank in Yellow Springs.

Sweeney was alleged by authorities to have passed at least two bogus checks in Greene County and six in Wilmington for a total of $255.21. Sheriff John Baughn found $384 in the man's pockets and this money was used to make some of the checks good.

Good looks aren't always luck

Sparkling eyes and a smooth complexion depend on good health. The beautiful woman guards against constipation. She knows this condition can cause headaches, sallow skin, dull eyes, pimples, premature aging.

Protect yourself from constipation by eating a delicious cereal. Tests show Kellogg's ALL-BRAN provides "bulk" to exercise the intestines, and Vitamin B to tone the intestinal tract. In addition, ALL-BRAN furnishes blood-building iron. The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is similar to that of lettuce. Within the body, it forms a soft mass, which gently clears the intestines of wastes. How much safer than pills and drugs—so often habit-forming.

Two tablespoonfuls daily—in serious cases, with every meal—will correct most types of constipation. If your trouble is not relieved in this way, see your doctor.

Serve as a cereal, with milk or cream, or use in cooking. At all grocers. In the red-and-green package. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

CHECK PASSER FREE AFTER AGREEING TO REIMBURSE VICTIM

William H. Deutsch, 37, bond jumper, pleaded guilty to a fraudulent check charge when arraigned in Common Pleas Court Monday and escaped prosecution on his promise to make full restitution for two worthless checks amounting to $500 each, given to James Malavazos, part owner of the Xenia Candy Kitchen, E. Main St.

The $1,000 will be refunded on the partial payment plan. Judge R. L. Gowdy stipulated that Deutsch pay $250 down and the remaining $750 within sixty days. He must also pay court costs and other expenses incurred in connection with his case. Meanwhile, he is given his liberty.

Apprehended at Sandusky, O., last August after being the object of a state-wide search for a year, Deutsch was returned to Xenia and held for grand jury action. Released on $1,000 bail, Deutsch once more became a fugitive from justice. He was indicted by the October grand jury in the bogus check charge but was not re-arrested until last Thursday at Cincinnati. Word of his arrest was received by Xenia police just as arrangements were being made to declare his $1,000 bond forfeit.

SECOND COMING OF CHRIST SUBJECT OF TUESDAY SERVICES

"The Second Coming of Christ" or "If Christ Came to Xenia" will be the topic of the Rev. Ralph E. Stewart Tuesday evening as the third week of the "Crusade for Christ" campaign begins in the Tabernacle, E. Third St., under auspices of the Laymen's Evangelistic Association.

"Many people think that the second coming of Christ is the end of the world," comments the Rev. Mr. Stewart. "Others predict that war clouds in the Far East are heralding another World War which will later resolve itself into Armageddon. For many who are anxious to know Bible facts we shall bring this one message in the campaign on the subject."

Cottage prayer meetings were resumed Tuesday morning in all sections of the city. Children's meetings will be held Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday at 4 p. m. Monday was rest day at the Tabernacle and members of the evangelistic party spoke and sang at pastors' meetings in Dayton.

In order to continue through the third week here Homer Hammon and Paul Beckwith, members of the evangelistic party, postponed an engagement which had previously been arranged for Union Theological Seminary, Richmond, Va. Homer Rodheaver, famous chorister of the "Billy" Sunday meetings has been anxious to obtain the services of Mr. Beckwith for a concert tour through Florida, it is said. Mr. Hammon and Mr. Beckwith have gained the confidence of Xenia people during their service here, it is said.
